Keeping tradition alive

West Hoathly, nestling in the heart of Sussex, is famed for its character stock bricks, not just locally but throughout the country. Manufactured from local Wealden clays, West Hoathly bricks continue to be fired in traditional clamps; a method originally used for firing all stock bricks but largely now replaced by modern firing techniques.

In conjunction with original clay recipes and other techniques, the clamps create a unique range and depth of colour not achieved in the modern kilns and which has long been the trademark of West Hoathly. Once fired the bricks are hand selected to maintain the quality and consistency of these colours.

With bespoke blends and a full range of standard and purpose made special shapes, West Hoathly is able to turn any brickwork challenge into an opportunity as seen by the range and breadth of projects in this brochure.

West Hoathly is synonymous with traditional stock bricks, establishing a reputation for creating seamless blending on extension and refurbishment projects, especially in the South East. However, West Hoathly's appeal extends into both new build and long-term phased developments throughout the country, explaining why West Hoathly bricks continue to maintain their popularity.

With the amazing range of bricks available from Ibstock, it is difficult to imagine there isn't a brick to match any situation. However at Ibstock we have gone one step further and now are able to offer almost any blend of our products to meet your own individual requirements.

Whether it is to match up with existing brickwork or to impress your own identity upon a new project, the options are unlimited. We have recently supplied bespoke blends to a number of prestigious projects including the Kia Oval Cricket Ground, London, various academic & student accommodation buildings at Sussex University, up-market apartments in Canada Water, London and the Civic Offices, Addlestone, Surrey.

To help you design your own unique product, we have created an online blending tool where you can get creative without spending a penny or leaving your desk. Simply select up to 3 different bricks of the same manufacture type, select the percentage of each brick and click on the "make blend" button – if the results aren't to your liking then you can adjust the proportion of each of the chosen bricks or just choose another brick type from our huge range.

It is simple to use and can really help you to design the perfect product for your project – You can even select what colour mortar to use for your blend as this can have a dramatic effect on the appearance of the brickwork.
